Viettel receives “Provider of the Year” award

The organising board of 2009 Asia-Pacific ICT Awards has presented the army-run telecommunication company Viettel with the “Provider of the Year” award.

The awards were sponsored by Frost & Sullivan, a global growth consulting to honour enterprises and individuals who have made outstanding achievements in information technology and telecommunication in the Asia-Pacific region.

The selection criteria for the awards were growth of revenue, diversification of products and business activities and the capability to overcome challenges in the market economy.

Viettel is the first telecoms company to receive the award.
